The historic Colgate Clock (left) has been a fixture on the western shore of the Hudson River for decades. Today this proud symbol of Hudson County’s industrial past shares the waterfront with the gleaming skyscrapers of its information age present - and future. This photo captures the Colgate Clock with its new neighbor, New Jersey’s tallest building, The Goldman Sachs Tower.

HISTORY OF HUDSON COUNTY

Hudson County was originally called Pavonia, the land of the Peacock, after its original owner, the Dutchman Michael Pauw (Peacock). Part of the domain of the Dutch West Indies Company, the area was governed by Peter Stuyvesant, who established the town of Bergen in 1660. In 1674, all of New Amsterdam (and New Jersey) became English colonies, including Hudson County, which was then still part of Bergen County.

In 1804, Col. John Stevens laid out the “New City of Hoboken” and in the same year, counseled by Attorney Alexander Hamilton, a group of New York City lawyers bought the old ferry site of Paulus Hook (Jersey City). Steam ferries and railroads brought boom times, leading to the official establishment of Hudson as a new county in 1846, the smallest in New Jersey. Following the Civil War, Hudson County became a center of industry, home to giants in the soap, tobacco, light bulb, steel, oil, ladder, and engineering fields. Though claimed by New York City, the Statue of Liberty stands in New Jersey waters, on Hudson County’s shores.

Past Lady Liberty and through Ellis Island came millions of immigrants over the next century, swelling the tiny county’s population and packing it’s ever urbanized landscape. Hudson County became the gateway for generations of new Americans who toiled in the factories, rail lines and on the docks of industrial age America. These waves of immigrants set the tone for a County that still proudly celebrates it diverse neighborhoods and a local cultural mosaic composed of more than a hundred nationalities.

Today, Hudson County remains New Jersey’s smallest and most densely populated county, with over 600,000 residents packed into just 46 square miles. Connected to New York by the Lincoln and Holland Tunnels, PATH trains and commuter water ferry services, it boasts a gleaming waterfront replete with office towers bearing the names of investment and banking giants like J.P. Morgan Chase, Goldman Sachs and Merrill Lynch & Co. The County is home to a host of information-age firms formerly based in New York who have taken advantage of the lower cost of doing business and the outstanding modern infrastructure found here to help make them more competitive.

Hudson also remains a transportation hub, boasting a modern light rail system that runs north-south throughout the County, and serviced by several major transportation arteries, including the New Jersey Turnpike, I-295, and U.S. Route 1

Economically vibrant, ethnically diverse and supremely well located, Hudson County is poised for a new century of growth.

HUDSON COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Under the form of government adopted in 1976, Hudson is governed by a County Executive and Board of Chosen Freeholders.

The County Executive serves as the chief executive officer for county government, appointing department heads and overseeing the day-to-day activities of all departments and divisions. Thomas A. DeGise was re-elected to this post in November 2003 for a four-year term that expires on December 31, 2007. Prior to becoming County Executive, Mr. DeGise served two terms as Municipal Council President of Jersey City.

The nine-member Board of Chosen Freeholders serves as the County’s legislature. The Board provides advice, oversight and consent to actions of the County Executive and proposes and develops policy initiatives. Board members serve on standing committees that provide oversight on all functions of County government and act as representatives to State and County entities. Each Freeholder represents a district apportioned equally by population for a term of three years. The current term of the Freeholders will expire on December 31, 2005.

Hudson County Government includes an appointed County Administrator, who serves the County Executive and Freeholder Board, and six departments that carry out the following duties:

The Department of Corrections oversees the operation of Hudson County Correctional Center and the Hudson County Juvenile Detention Center.

The Department of Family Services supervises efforts to aid families and individuals in economic need. It includes the County Division of Welfare and operates the Summer Youth Employment Program (STEP), an innovative public-private partnership between local business and County government.

The Department of Finance & Administration directs the budgeting of county funds and includes Accounts & Controls, the Budget Office, Central Services, Commercial Revitalization, Community Development, Data Processing, the Division of Personnel, the County Print Shop, the Division of Purchasing, Tax Assessment, and Transportation.

The Department of Health & Human Services provides services to the County’s most vulnerable residents, including seniors, individuals with medical needs and those struggling with substance abuse. It includes the Office on Aging, AIDS Services, Alcohol & Drug Abuse Services, Prevention Alliance, Homeless, Families and Youth Services, Shelter, Employee Health Clinic, Mental Health, Psychiatric Services, Transudson Program, and County Chest Clinic.

The Law Department is headed by the County Counsel, who provides legal counsel to the County Executive and the Board of Chosen Freeholders and supervises the activities of the attorneys employed by the department. The Law Department includes the Attorney’s Office, the Office of Risk Management and the Division of Consumer Affairs and the Minority & Women Business Enterprise.

The Department of Public Resources is responsible for the physical assets of the County, including its roads, buildings and the County park system. Its Division of Parks maintains and improves the eight county parks: Stephen R. Gregg Park in Bayonne, Mercer Park on the Bayonne/Jersey City border, Columbus Park in Hoboken, Lincoln Park in Jersey City, Laurel Hill Park in Secaucus, North Hudson (Braddock) Park in North Bergen, Washington Park in Union City and West Hudson Park in Kearny.

Generally, county services are shared services that no one municipality can perform alone, such as providing facilities for the operation of the courts, the correctional facilities, waste management and the welfare system. County government also functions as the liaison between municipalities and state and federal governments, guiding the fair distribution of resources within a particular region, often through its autonomous agencies. And it provides regional educational services on the secondary and college level.

Hudson County Educational Services

The Hudson County Schools of Technology (HCST) provides eight different programs located on campuses throughout Hudson to serve many kinds of learners on the secondary level, including an adult education high school, vocational and technical programs, career-driven learning programs and the academically outstanding High Tech High School, which has twice won the State’s coveted “Star School” designation and been named one of the top 15 high schools in New Jersey by New Jersey Monthly Magazine.

Each year hundreds of students across the County compete to gain admission to the Schools of Technology and the outstanding opportunity it offers to meld the latest technology with some of the best instruction available anywhere in the State of New Jersey. HCST also offers the “Explore 2000” middle school program in cooperation with Liberty Science Center and local school districts. Explore 2000 actually employs the Science Center as a giant classroom; it acts as a resource laboratory for applying the themes of environmental science, health and technology to support the learning environment.

Hudson County Community College

Founded in 1981, Hudson County Community College (HCCC) is widely recognized as a valuable community asset where residents can receive a quality education at an affordable price close to home. The College enjoys full and unrestricted general accreditation from the Middle States Association, and offers programs in many areas of study with technology that have been awarded specialized professional certification.

Over the past decade, the College’s full-credit enrollment has grown to more than 6,000 students, and non-credit enrollment has increased tenfold. The curriculum has been revised and expanded to include stronger career programs, including a recently launched Paramedic Science degree program. The College has established a centralized counseling program and reorganized student government/student activities programs to provide a stronger co-curricular supplement to its academic programs.

HCCC’s chapter of the international Phi Theta Kappa honor society is a source of special pride for the College and has earned national and statewide recognition for excellence. The Center for Business and Industry provides contract training for county employers and local businesses. And our recently established Division of Technology & Instructional Support Services is implementing an ambitious plan to incorporate state-of-the-art technology into the classroom and workplace.

HUDSON COUNTY AUTONOMOUS AGENCIES

Hudson County Economic Development Corporation (HCEDC)
The Hudson County Economic Development Corporation provides over 3 million dollars in low cost financing to small businesses, administers the County’s award winning Brownfields programs and serves the business community with site location and relocation services.

Hudson County Improvement Authority (HCIA)
The Hudson County Improvement Authority’s mission is simple: To provide a wide range of needed services to the residents and businesses of Hudson County at the least cost to taxpayers. HCIA shoulders broad responsibilities in solid waste management, recycling, affordable housing and transportation management. Since the HCIA’s creation two decades ago, Hudson County’s recycling rate has increased from three percent to more than fifty-five percent.

Hudson Transportation Management Association (TMA)
The Hudson Transportation Management Association is a division of the Hudson County Improvement Authority, created to meet the county’s transportation needs. The TMA specializes in supporting companies and their employees in the implementation of transportation programs that improve their commuting experience and the development of telecommuting programs for local businesses. The Hudson TMA is one of nearly twenty county TMAs at work throughout the State of New Jersey seeking to increase use of mass transit and reduce traffic congestion.

Hudson Regional Health Commission
The Hudson Regional Health Commission, with the support of all municipalities and the County of Hudson, has been providing environmental control programs since 1971. Pursuant to the County Environmental Health Act, HRHC has been designated by the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection and the Board of Chosen Freeholders as the lead agent for the following environmental control programs: air pollution control, noise pollution control, solid waste enforcement, water pollution control, hazardous substance control/emergency response.

Beginning in 2001, HRHC developed and implemented a public health emergency response program with the support of the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services, all twelve of Hudson’s municipalities and the County of Hudson. A Board of Commissioners representing each of the Hudson County municipalities governs HRHC.
